

Pre-Professional Social Media Review

Red Five will review the public social media presence of pre-professionals and high school students starting their college application process. Colleges and employers frequently check applicants' social media profiles when determining whom to accept. Red Five ensures you are aware of what a college or employer will see when they search for:

- Social media activity
- Online activity
- User-generated content that may be considered disagreeable

Red Five's Pre-Professional Social Media Review will provide tailored recommendations and instructions to minimize your public online profile. Families will protect their legacy and have peace of mind that their young professional's online presence will not be a liability in their college or job search.
